Spelling Rules

Rule 1: We generally add -ing at the end of the verb:

They are working (work) on a new project.

She's playing (play) tennis right now.

Rule 2: If the verb ends in a silent 'e', then the 'e' is left out and -ing is added at the end.

We are preparing (prepare) for the grammar test.

I am making (make) a chocolate cake.

Rule 3: If the verb ends with 'ie' drop the ending and add a 'y' + -ing form.

He is lying (lie) about the real consequences of this situation.

Rule 4: If a one-syllable verb ends in a single consonant preceded by a single vowel, then the last letter is doubled before the -ing ending.

Are they swimming (swim) faster now?

He's sitting (sit) next to his mother.

Rule 5: If a two-syllable verb ends in a single consonant preceded by a single vowel, and the stress is on the last syllable then we have to double the last consonant too.

I'm beginning (begin) a new English course this week.

He's admitting (admit) his mistakes.

Rule 6: If a verb ends with 'y' or 'w' and is preceded by a singular vowel, then the 'y' and 'w' is not doubled while the -ing is added at the end of the verb.

The student is drawing (draw) a beautiful picture.

You are paying (pay) attention to these spelling rules.
