There isn't = There is not

There aren't = There are not

We use “there is” for singular and uncountable nouns and “there are” for plural nouns.

Nowadays, there is a lot of new information about AI.

There’s a small library in my university.

There is a laptop next to the printer, you can use it!

There are some good and interesting museums in my city.

There are a lot of people at the bus stop.

There are two sandwiches in the fridge.

The negative is formed by adding not after is or are. For example:

There is not any juice in the fridge.

There are not twenty computers in this lab.

There isn't a GPS in that car.

There aren't any airports in this city.

In the interrogative form the verb 'To Be' is placed before “there”. For example:

Is there a security guard in the company?

Are there any universities in your town?

Is there any ice-cream in the fridge?

How many “Fast and the Furious” movies are there?

How much water is there in this swimming pool?

FUTURE WITH "GOING TO"

A graphic with a crumpled paper texture and bokeh light effects. The text "FUTURE WITH" is in white on a black banner, and "GOING TO" is in large, bold, black letters below it.

The structure BE GOING TO is normally used to indicate the future in English.

We use it...

1. When we have already decided or we intend to do something in the future (prior plan).

It's decided! I'm going to go to India next year.

Are you going to watch the match tonight?

She's going to study Chemical Engineering next year.

2. When there are definite signs that something is going to happen (evidence).

Look at that car! It is going to crash into the yellow one.

It's so cold! I think it is going to snow.

Look at those clouds, I believe it is going to rain.

- Will is an auxiliary verb, we use it to talk about things that we think will happen in the future.
 - Note that it's common to use will with the expressions: I think, I don't think, I hope, etc., or also with I'm sure, I'm not sure, perhaps, etc.

I'm sure he will love your new coat.

They won't win this match.

I hope they will arrive soon.

I don't think they 'll come.

I'm sure you 'll be fine.

1. We use will for promises, offers, intentions or threats:

I will lend her the money.

I won't help you.

2. We use will when we make decisions at the moment of speaking (instant decisions):

A: There's no milk in the fridge. B: I'll go to the shop to buy some.

A: This box is very heavy. B: Don't worry. I'll help you.

3. An opinion, a wish, a prediction about the future:

Perhaps, I will be late for the meeting.

It will rain tomorrow.

4. We use “will” with conditional sentences Type I, they describe hypothetical situations:

If I need help, I’ll call you.

If the client likes the project, he’ll invest in the company.
